

THE CUBE OF KEK

I was just a normal guy until I found cryptocurrency, I was amazed at the potential and started down the rabbit hole unaware of what truths I was about to find. After a few months of being drawn in, trading, learning, I felt like it was meant to be, crypto's are changing the world and perhaps it is all for something so much bigger, I'm not talking governments I'm talking ancient gods.

On Sunday 16/07/17 I went to the supermarket to get some groceries for the coming week, while I was waiting on my girl I noticed some trading cards, just some marvel ones, I was really drawn to them and had a feeling of nostalgia overwhelm me to the point I had to buy some. I took them home, opened them and I was instantly disappointed at the poor quality, what was I really expecting to get out of some cards at 28 years old? I then had a brainwave, in this day and age surely someone must have created blockchain cards.

Spells of genesis and rare pepe. I found spells of genesis first, this is a game that uses trading cards linked with a blockchain token, and they can be found on the book of orbs, which is a mobile app that can view the cards associated with the assets. So I found spells of genesis cards and I purchased a few that I had a connection with. I then found another card series called rare pepe, this card series is massive and has many cards based on pepe memes and other pepe art.

I was amazed by the community and variation of art that rare pepe has become. I started to look deeper into pepe and that's when things started getting weird. I found KEK, KEK is an ancient Egyptian god who lives between the night and the day, the weird thing is that it looks very much like pepe and many believe pepe is the reincarnation of the ancient deity KEK.

To get you up to speed you should read this

<https://pepethefrogfaith.wordpress.com/>

Blown your mind?

For me personally it got weird after I read that. I thought maybe this is true, maybe throughout history the truth was lost and maybe there is relics of KEK that are out there waiting to be discovered.

The next day was the Friday that followed that Sunday in the supermarket, I had KEK and pepe on my mind and unfortunately I went to attend a friend's funeral, it was a very emotional day. That day was the first day I have been in a church since I was young, and with KEK on my mind I really started to believe in fate and having faith.

That night after the funeral I had the weirdest dream. I dreamt I was in a desert wearing a robe, but the desert seemed like another planet, gravity felt really heavy and the sky wasn't of earth as I could see many planets. I was lost and alone but I had no fear, just this new found faith, I smiled and then started to dig with my hands in the sand and I found a cube what seemed to be made of glass, it had light inside it and hieroglyphics moving around it.

Upon waking I thought that was some weird dream, and decided to draw a trading card style piece of art, I called it kekune and said that it had been split into 777 pieces and had been scattered throughout the universe. I then carried on as normal on that Saturday and forgot about it.

Then Sunday, coincidentally the same day as the kecking airdrop, I was looking into ancient history and with very little digging I found this

Is this THE CUBE OF KEK?

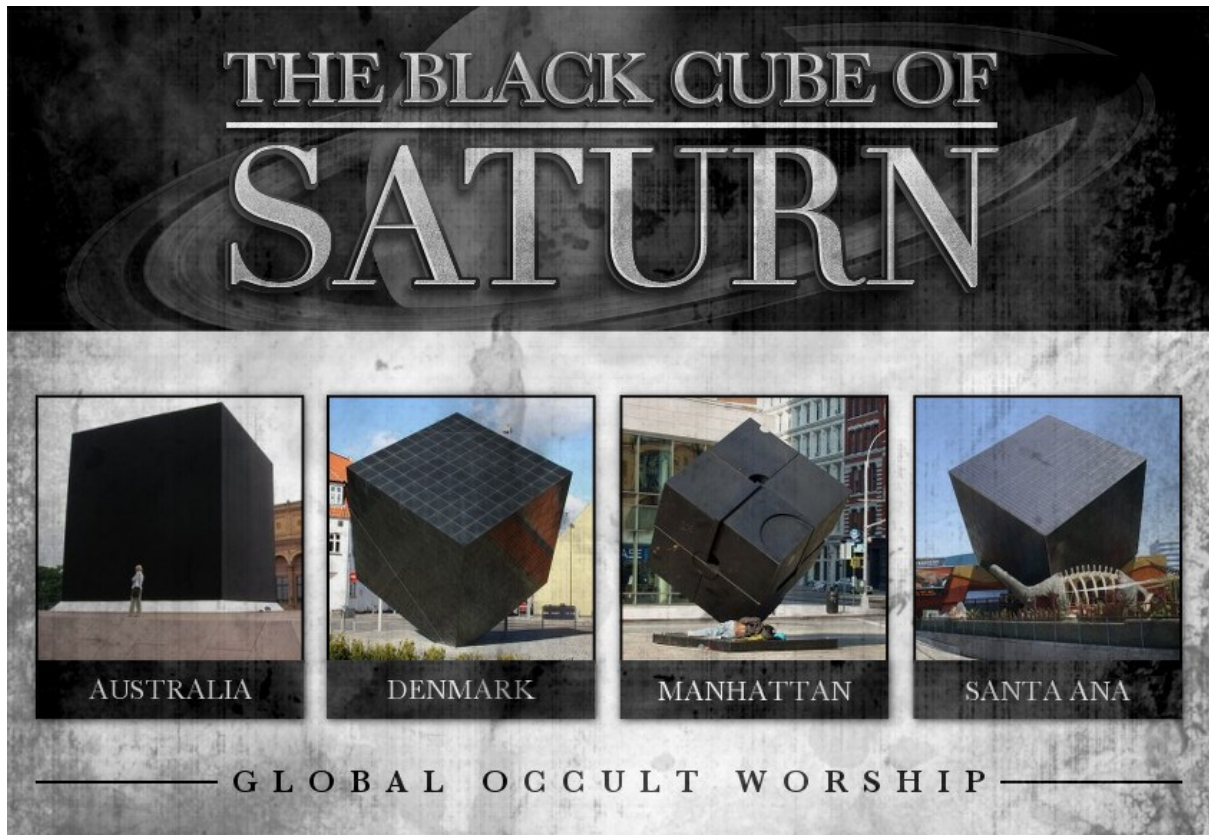

<http://unchartedruins.blogspot.co.uk/2012/08/the-hittites-mysterious-people-of.html>

My story only gets stranger, after this discovery I decided to look deeper and I discovered this.

It appears that another ancient god has a cube, and it is evil. Does this mean that THE CUBE OF KEK is good? I believe that there is a supernatural battle occurring between good and evil.

Check this out.

Has set worked his way into modern culture over the millennia? We all think big corporations are evil and these cubes have been forged with that power.

To make things even stranger, this year is the year of the rooster in Chinese zodiac, and there is another god call THOTH who is a god of language and ledgers, which makes me think of the blockchain and cryptocurrency's being the ultimate ledger. This is all very weird and definitely needs further investigation.

Just in case my RAREHANDS have come across great ancient powers I have locked THECUBEOFKEK and THECUBEOFSET into the blockchain. I have created 1 of each that are devisable but at this time I think they shouldn't ever be separated unless the power of KEK tells me to. As for everyone else who wants to view these ancient relics I have created KEKCUBE and SETCUBE. Issued 777 and 666, along with this I have created KEKDUST at 100000 which is the invisible dust we breath in everyday that gives us faith and energy, making us feel dank af, I have also Created SETDUST at 99999 because I want less evil in the world than good. SETDUST can be sent as a bad omen similarly KEKDUST can be sent as an omen of good faith.

I have RAREHANDS at 444 as it represents me and my discovery, I have been born with rare double simian lines which meant nothing until now, the ancient Indians believed simian lines meant you have a great connection with the earth and children with these lines were often raised as medicine men.

Legend of the Perakee

<http://perakee.com/> (not my site)

I believe ancient gods/beings visited our planets long ago and we are whats left of a broken attempt of new civilization.

Together we will become strong once again and find the truth.

By RAREHANDS the holder of the two cubes.